

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An accounting printing system according to the present invention is constituted by connecting an information
5 distributing apparatus and a printing apparatus to each other through an electronic network. The information distributing apparatus includes: a literary work information data base for storing literary work information in a digital form; and a
10 management information storing section for storing management information for controlling the print processing of the literary work information. The printing apparatus receives and stores the literary work information and the management information and prints the literary work
15 information under print conditions specified in the management information.

00010596 022904
FOUO 20 53561850